Online Conference 2022

Teaching Composition to ESL/EFL Students

30 Sept. and 1 Oct. 2022

You are welcome

We welcome submissions for an online scholarly conference. Papers may address any aspect of teaching composition to ESL/EFL students, including—but not limited to—the following:

- Theory and practical applications
- New strategies
- Development of paragraphs and essays
- Models and modeling
- Genres
- Writing as a process
- Teaching grammar within the process
- Language development within the process
- Digital and multimodal writing
- Assessments

Academics at all levels—including undergraduates and graduate students—are welcome to submit 250-word proposals for 15-minute presentations to EasyChair at https://easychair.org/conferences/?conf=troycomposition2022 by 1 September 2022. To submit an abstract, click "Create an account" on the EasyChair page (it's free), and then follow the prompts.

TROY UNIVERSITY

Department of English

More information:
tmjohnson@troy.edu
or eslefl@troy.edu