ATLANTA, GA. Apr. 15th 1918

Dear Miss Pierce:-

Do you know I am afraid that something dreadful has happened at Tallassee? I have been watching every mail for a few lines from you but never a line came. Now can you really blame me for being disappointed after receiving such splendid letters from you and then stopping so suddenly? Hardly? Well I am anyway. Perhaps it is through some fault of mine but I sincerely hope not. Though if it is I am very, very sorry and if I have in any way offended, it was unintentional and I beg pardon a thousand times. By losing your correspondence seems more like losing the friendship of some old companion and if that has ever happened to you, perhaps you can imagine how I feel.

So if there are any ways in which to win back your good graces I would be very glad to hear of them.

Trusting that you will reply
I remain,

Very sincerely

P.S. Thanks for Stollands.
